

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

PALMER'S VOCAL MODULATOR.

EXPLANATION.—The broad central column represents the key of C. The columns at its right indicate those keys which require sharps for their signatures, viz.: G key (one sharp); D key (two sharps); A key (three sharps); E key (four sharps); B key (five sharps); and F# key (six sharps). The columns at the left of the central (C) column, denote those keys which require flats for their signatures, viz.: F key (one flat); Bb key (two flats); Eb key (three flats); Ab key (four flats); Db key (five flats); and Gb key (six flats).

All black syllables and figures denote Diatonic Tones.

All colored syllables, figures, and characters denote Chromatic Tones.

All tones, the tendency from which is upward, are called sharp, and are here represented by red.

All tones, the tendency from which is downward, are called flat, and are here indicated by green.

To find the signature of a given key, compare its "black" tones (Diatonic Tones) with those in the central column (C or Modal Key), the point or points at which they differ being noted will give the desired signature: e.g., to ascertain the signature of the key of G, compare its diatonic tones (black) with those in the central column, when it will be found that they agree (black in both) at all points except 7 (ti), which, in the central column, is red. By glancing across to the last right-hand column it will be seen that the point of difference is F#, which is the signature of the key of G.

PREFACE.

THE object in preparing the present volume has been to place before the Church Choral Unions, as well as classes generally throughout the States, a thoroughly comprehensive and progressive TEXT-BOOK. It follows the METHOD which has been adopted with surprising results by the Church Choral Unions in New York, Brooklyn, Washington, D.C., Buffalo, Norwalk, Conn., Elizabeth, N. J., Allegheny City, Pa., Quincy, Ill., etc., etc. No method has ever had a better chance, and none has more perfectly satisfied all demands. Still we do not claim to teach anything new. It is simply a new way of teaching the old things.

Teachers will find this method laid down in great detail in a small volume entitled "PALMER'S RUDIMENTAL CLASS TEACHING,"* a book which can be carried in one's pocket, and which will suggest to the teacher the best way of introducing new points. While it was made for another set of studies, it can be readily adapted to the exercises in this work.

The first lesson should be given before books are distributed, thus enabling the teacher to keep the eyes of the pupils centered upon him. The following, from the little book alluded to above, will give an idea of the opening lessons:—

RUDIMENTAL CLASS TEACHING.†

The teacher remarks that all present will be considered as beginners, and will be expected to comply with every request he may make, and although some may have studied music they must regard themselves, for the time being, as beginners, and by answering questions and otherwise complying with his requests, encourage the younger members. He also remarks that in learning to sing, as in learning to talk, we depend largely upon imitation. The child hears its parents speak the little words it is trying to learn hundreds of times before it can place its vocal organs in proper position to pronounce them; so in learning to sing, we listen to tones produced by the teacher, and try to imitate them. He then says:—

1. "Listen, and imitate the tone you hear."
2. He sings the tone C, second space of bass staff,‡ to the syllable la, giving a the sound it has in the word father, taking care that the tone is pure, neither too long nor so short as to be abrupt—also being careful that the position in which he stands is such as he would wish to have imitated, namely, the body erect, the shoulders thrown slightly back. He explains the position and says,
3. "All try to sing that tone." They try, and are more or less successful. After allowing them to repeat it a number of times, he asks them to listen and produces the tone D, to the syllable la, as before, and says,
4. "Was that the tone which you sung, or a new one?" "A new tone."
5. "Sing the new tone."

6. After they have practised it a few times he says,

7. "Sing the tone you sung first." They sing.

8. We will call that tone one and the new one two. If I should ask you to sing one, what tone would you sing?" They answer by singing one.

9. "If I should ask you to sing two, what tone would you sing?" They answer by singing two.

10. He sings E and asks, "Did I sing one, two or a new tone?" "A new tone."

11. "All sing the new tone." They sing.

12. "How many tones have we learned?" "Three."

13. "What is the name of the first?" "One." "What is the name of the second?" "Two." "Observing the same order, what shall we call the new tone?" "Three."

14. The teacher should allow the pupils to practice these three tones at some length, after which he calls upon them to sing One, then Two, then Three. He then requests them to listen, and sings F.

15. "Was the tone which I sung one of the three we have learned, or a new tone?" "A new tone."

16. "All try to sing the new tone." They sing.

17. "What would be a good name for this new tone?" "Four."

18. After practicing the four tones upward and downward many times, the teacher says,

19. "Sing One." They sing. "Sing Two." "Three." "Four." They sing. He requests them to listen, and sings G, to the syllable la as before.

20. "Did I sing one of the four or a new tone?" "A new tone."

21. "Sing the new tone." They comply and he asks,

22. "What shall we call this new tone?" "Five."

23. The teacher dwells upon these five tones, until the pupils are familiar with them, then introduces A, B and C in the same manner and says,

24. "These eight tones form the Diatonic Scale, which is the foundation of the entire musical structure. As soon as you have learned everything concerning this scale and its surroundings, you will have learned all that can be learned about music."

25. After practicing the scale carefully, ascending and descending, the exercise may be varied by requesting the pupils to "sing One twice; Two twice; Three twice, &c., up and down." This may be followed by asking them to "sing One three times; Two three times, &c., pausing to take a deep breath after every third tone."

26. Great care should be taken in the first lessons, regarding the correct manner of using the respiratory organs, as well as the vocal organs; breath should be taken by direct action of the chest and abdominal muscles, thus relieving the throat and lungs of unnecessary effort, which only tends to weary and weaken them.

27. "We commonly follow the Italian plan of giving each tone a name. One is called Do; two, Ri; three, Mi," &c.

28. "What is the new name of One?" "Do." "Of Two?" "Re." "Of Three?" "Mi," &c.

29. The teacher should be careful to have the pupils pronounce these syllables correctly, one of the objects in applying different names to the tones is that we may practice the several vowel sounds, giving the long sound of o to Do, the long sound of a to Re, the long sound of e to Mi, &c.

30. After practicing the scale many times by syllables, the SKIP OF A THIRD is introduced as follows:—

31. "Sing One by its syllable name." They sing. "Sing Two." "Sing Three." "Again sing Three, and remember the tone and its position in the scale, so that if asked to sing it a few moments hence you will be able to do so." They sing. "Sing One." They sing. "Now sing Three." After practicing the skip of a Third many times (frequently calling their attention to its relative position in the scale by asking "what tone is found between Do and Mi?") the teacher introduces the skip of Two, Four, in a similar manner. This will be followed by Three, Five; Four, Six; Five Seven; and Six, Eight; being careful always to remain with each exercise long enough to enable them to become perfectly familiar with it, and to draw upon their intelligence by asking questions.

32. "From any tone to the next but one is called A THIRD. What tone is a third from Do?" "Mi"

33. "What tone is a third from Re?" "Fa."

34. "What tone is a third from Mi?" "Sol."

35. "What tone is a third from Fa?" "La."

36. "What tone is a third from Sol?" "Ti."

37. "What tone is a third from La?" "Do."

38. The teacher explains that singing a tone, skipping the next and singing the third is called a SKIP OF A THIRD. Practice all skips of a third in the octave.

39. Since writing the book from which much of the above is quoted (1867), a very important element has been added to the method, viz.: the practice of chords by the whole class, which should be introduced as soon as they have completed the scale. The following is the most effective way to introduce

CHORD PRACTICE.*

40. "Sing one." They sing. "Sing Three." They sing. "Sing Five." They sing. "Now choose one of these three and sing it." The result will be that some will sing Do, some Sol, and some Mi.

41. "Now choose a different tone—either of the three—and sing it." They sing. The result will not be so satisfactory as before, inasmuch as the low voices will probably sing Sol, and the high voices Do, thus leaving Mi out entirely. The teacher calls their attention to the thinness of the chord and says,

42. "Let me choose for you. All the gentlemen sing Do; these ladies (indicating those who sit in certain seats) sing Mi; all the other ladies present sing Sol." The result will be much more satisfactory.

43. "When the three tones are performed simultaneously the effect is called a CHORD, and a chord is named from its lowest tone, hence the chord of Do consists of what three tones?" "Do, Mi, Sol."

44. "Sing One." "Sing Three." "Sing Five." "This singing of the Numbers of the chord is called spelling the chord; when the three tones are sung simultaneously, it is called pronouncing the chord."

45. "Spell and pronounce the Chord of Do."

They sing Do, then Mi, then Sol, after which they sing the three simultaneously, when the effect will be as follows:—

46. "Let us now see if we can form a chord upon Re. What tone shall we sing first?" "Re." "What tone must we omit?" "Mi." "And what tone shall we sing next?" "Fa." "Again omit what tone?" "Sol." "And sing what?" "La." "What tones form the Chord of Re?" "Re, Fa, La."

47. "Spell and pronounce the Chord of Re." They sing

48. "Following the same plan, what tones will form the Chord of Mi?" "Mi, Sol, Ti."

49. "Spell and pronounce the Chord of Mi." They sing thus:

50. "Still continuing our plan, what tones will form the Chord of Fa?" "Fa, La, Do."

51. "Spell and pronounce the Chord of Fa." They sing

52. The practice of chords must be confined to these four, until after the EXTENSION OF THE SCALE has been introduced, several lessons hence (see RUDIMENTAL CLASS TEACHING, page 19, §105), when the formation of chords can go on as follows:

53. What tones will form the Chord of Sol?" "Sol, Ti, Re."

54. "Spell and pronounce the Chord of Sol." They sing thus:

55. "Spell and pronounce the Chord of Sol in the lower octave." They sing as follows:

56. "What tones form the Chord of La?" "La, Do, Mi."

57. "Spell and pronounce the Chord of La in the lower octave." They sing as follows:

58. "What tones form the Chord of Ti?" "Ti, Re, Fa."

59. "Spell and pronounce the Chord of Ti?" They sing as follows:

60. Great care must be taken with this diminished chord, on account of the tendency to sing the lowest tone (Ti) too high. After a few minutes drill, however, the teacher will have the satisfaction of hearing the chord stand as still as any of the other chords.

NOTE.—Here should be introduced the resolutions of tones, viz., the tendency, after singing 7, is to sing 8. "When tones progress (move) according to their natural tendency they are said to resolve, hence 8 resolves 7, 3 resolves 4, 5 resolves 6, and 2 resolves 1." After asking the class to "Sing 7 and resolve it," "Sing 4 and resolve it," "Sing 6 and resolve it," "Sing 2 and resolve it," they are requested to—

61. "Spell, pronounce and resolve the Chord of Ti." They sing as follows:

62. "I now wish to form a chord which differs from those we have learned, inasmuch as they consist of three tones each, while the new chord has four tones."

NOTE.—As this chord is not to be introduced until after the class has been divided into Soprano, Alto, Tenor and Bass, and their proper positions assigned them, no confusion will be caused by calling on the different parts by name. And here we would say that after the first four chords are introduced, no more new ones must follow for several lessons (until after the extension of the scale upward and downward) and then it is recommended to introduce only one new chord at each lesson, which will bring this four-fold chord in its appropriate place, namely, after the parts have been separated.

63. "Spell and pronounce the chord of Ti again, and in the pronunciation I want the Altos to sing Ti, the Tenors to sing Re, the Soprano will sing Fa as usual, and the Bass remain silent." They sing.

64. "Now spell and pronounce it again, and I will ask the Bass to join us, singing Sol in the pronunciation." They sing thus:

65. "We thus have a four-fold chord founded upon Sol, and in order to distinguish it from the three-fold chords we add the name of its largest interval. From Sol (pointing to the notes on blackboard) to Ti is a third; from Sol to Re is a fifth; and from Sol to Fa is seven degrees or a seventh, hence this is called the chord of the Seventh of Sol."

66. "What tones form the Chord of the Seventh of Sol?" "Sol, Ti, Re, Fa."

67. "Spell, pronounce and resolve the Chord of the Seventh of Sol." They sing as follows, the Bass singing Do in the pronunciation:

68. The time has now arrived when it is necessary to give technical names to these chords. This is done as follows:

69. "Scientific musicians of all languages have adopted a set of names for the members of our scale, which are called TECHNICAL TERMS. To One and Eight they have given the name TONIC; Two they call SUPER-TONIC; Three they call MEDIANT; Four, SUB-DOMINANT; Five, DOMINANT; Six, SUB-MEDIANT; Seven, SUB-TONIC."

70. The teacher now writes these names upon the blackboard, in the following order:

8. Tonic.
7. Sub-Tonic.
6. Sub-Mediat.
5. Dominant.
4. Sub-Dominant.
3. Mediant.
2. Super-Tonic.
1. Tonic.

71. After practicing these until they are familiar, the teacher says: "Hereafter we will apply these terms in naming our chords. The chord of Do will in future be called what?" "The chord of the Tonic."

72. "The chord of the Tonic consists of what tones?" "Do, Mi, Sol."

73. "The chord of the Super-Tonic consists of what tones?" "Re, Fa, La."

74. "The chord of the Mediant consists of what tones?" "Mi, Sol, Ti."

75. "The chord of the Sub-Dominant consists of what tones?" "Fa, La, Do."

76. "The chord of the Dominant consists of what tones?" "Sol, Ti, Re."

77. "The chord of the Sub-Mediat consists of what tones?" "La, Do, Mi."

78. "The chord of the Sub-Tonic consists of what tones?" "Ti, Re, Fa."

79. "What name shall we now give to the four-fold chord founded upon Sol?" "The chord of the Dominant Seventh."

80. "The chord of the Dominant Seventh consists of what tones?" "Sol, Ti, Re, Fa."

81. These chords should be practiced at the opening of every lesson. Five minutes thus spent will be of the utmost advantage to the class.

Each new point should first be illustrated on the blackboard, after which the class should turn quickly to the book and study the exercises which involve it.

It is the opinion of many of our best teachers that the syllable name of 7 of the scale should be changed to Ti (with the consequent change of the name of flat 7 to Te) in order to avoid the confusion arising from the use of the same term for three different things, viz.: Si, 7; C, the name of a certain pitch; and Si, sharp 5. However, nothing will be found in the exercises to prevent any from following the old plan if it is preferred.

The following schedule of the Junior Grade lessons, as taught in the Church Choral Union in New York and Brooklyn, may interest teachers generally. The term consists of 18 lessons, each 1½ hours long. Those teachers throughout the country who give only 10 or 12 lessons in a term will find it an excellent plan, during the first term, to skip a few exercises in each key, and carry the class as far as 3 or 4 sharps and 3 or 4 flats. Then during the second term review and go through the entire grade.

The 1st lesson begins with oral and blackboard exercises, and ends with No. 8.

The 2d begins with No. 1, and ends with No. 21.

The 3d begins with No. 20, and ends with No. 47. (Afterwards introduce the Tenor clef, and sing Nos. 69, 73, 74.)

The 4th begins with No. 42, and ends with No. 55. (Afterwards sing Nos. 66 and 98.)

The 5th begins with No. 51, and ends with No. 72.

The 6th begins with No. 72, and ends with No. 86.

The 7th begins with No. 85, and ends with No. 108.

The 8th begins with No. 101, and ends with No. 117.

The 9th begins with No. 115, and ends with No. 128.

The 10th begins with No. 124, and ends with No. 139.

The 11th begins with No. 137, and ends with No. 151.

The 12th begins with No. 149, and ends with No. 166.

The 13th begins with No. 159, and ends with No. 176.

The 14th begins with No. 170, and ends with No. 185.

The 15th reviews by studying Nos. 77, 93, 101, 110, 117, 122, 133, 135, 144, 150, 159, 167, 171, 173, 182, 185, and advances and ends with No. 189.

The 16th begins with No. 187, and ends with No. 203. Afterward review Nos. 89, 117 and 183.

The 17th begins with No. 200, and ends with No. 214.

The 18th begins with No. 212, and goes to No. 220.

Then reviews any pleasant pieces which the class may select from what has been studied.

A glance at this schedule will convince practical teachers that every superfluous word must be eliminated, and that not one moment can be wasted. As soon as the last chord of one exercise is finished, the next should be announced instantly. A sharp stroke of the baton or hands on the first pulse of each measure is indispensable, as by it all may be kept in exact time, and enabled to correct mistakes in beating every time they hear it.

Seeks com - mu - nion with the skies, Press - ing on - ward to the prize.

* The additional clause of this rule, namely—"and from measure to measure until canceled by a note intervening upon another degree of the staff," is very properly discontinued by most of our modern composers, as it is of no benefit, and causes great confusion. In this book, as in all the author's works, whenever an accidental is required in the following measure, it will be placed there.

THROUGHOUT the Senior Grade every piece should be practiced by syllables until all its tones are sung in time and in tune, and all modulations well understood. Less haste will bring greater speed, for every piece which is well learned imparts an added strength to the learner, which will be of great assistance in overcoming the obstacles of all future efforts.

The writer is of the opinion that the entire Grade should first be sung by syllables, all being obliged to beat the time, then return and apply the words, with expression, etc. There is great danger in abandoning syllables and beating too soon, as all are apt to blunder through once, and, with quick ears, catch their several parts by rote, and sing very well the second time, thus passing for readers, whereas, if left to their own powers, unsustained by an instrument, they would make sorry work of reading.

When the syllable names are thoroughly impressed upon the mind as names of tone-relations, the learner has progressed a long way toward an intelligent knowledge of tone-combinations, without which no one can be called a good reader, for a good reader should always know what relation the tone which he is singing sustains to the TONIC. Two terms cannot be called a long time to be confined to the practice of syllables and beating, if, in those two terms, the pupils shall have acquired a knowledge of tone-relationships.

In all cases in this grade (as in the Junior grade) the study should be without instrumental accompaniment, the teacher merely giving them the pitch MIDDLE C, and obliging the class to go from that pitch to their new TONIC, spell the tonic chord and at once spread out to their several pitches in the first chord of the piece they are about to study. And after going through with the piece once or twice, require them to spell and pronounce the Tonic Chord, then compare the pitch with the correct tone on the instrument, thus clearly showing any deviation from pitch while studying. This plan, persistently adhered to in the study of every piece, will have a telling effect upon the intelligence of the singers, the almost immediate results of which will be extremely satisfactory.

The first few minutes of each lesson should be spent in Practising Scales and Chords. The following plan is used in our Church Choral Unions, and may be of use to conductors:

- 1st. All sing the pitch C from memory, and then compare it with the instrument.
- 2d. The Diatonic Major Scale ascending and descending.
- 3d. The Diatonic Minor Scale (Harmonic) from same pitch, up and down.
- 4th. The Melodic Minor up and down (always starting on C.)
- 5th. Up with major and down with harmonic minor.
- 6th. Up with harmonic minor and down with major.
- 7th. Up with major, down with melodic minor.
- 8th. Up with melodic minor and down with major.
- 9th. Up with harmonic minor and down with melodic minor.
- 10th. Up with the melodic minor and down with harmonic minor.
- 11th. Spell and pronounce the TONIC CHORD forward and backward.
- 12th. Spell and pronounce the Super-Tonic Chord forward and backward.
- 13th. Spell and pronounce the Mediant Chord forward and backward.
- 14th. Spell and pronounce the Sub-Dominant Chord forward and backward.

- 15th. Spell and pronounce the Dominant Chord forward and backward.
- 16th. Spell and pronounce the Dominant Chord in the lower octave.
- 17th. Spell and pronounce the Sub-Mediant Chord in the lower octave.
- 18th. Spell and pronounce the Sub-Tonic Chord (resolving it into the Tonic Chord).
- 19th. Spell, pronounce and resolve the Dominant 7th chord major.
- 20th. The same spelled backward.
- 21st. Spell and pronounce the Dominant 7th of the minor key (mi, si, ti, re) resolving it into the minor TONIC.
- 22d. Again spell, pronounce and resolve the major Dom. 7th. (These dominant 7th chords should always begin on the pitch C.)
- 23d. Spell, pronounce and resolve the Diminished 7th chord (always spelling it backward, fa, re, ti, si). At first this Diminished 7th chord should follow the Dominant 7th chord, as its tones are the same (with one exception), it will be much more easily comprehended.

The practice of the above schedule will require only about 8 minutes, and should be strictly adhered to at the opening of each lesson, without variation. After which—

- 24th. Turn to Exercises in Rhythmics, page 146, and sing the first four numbers, each lesson commencing at the first number and going one number further, and when done with them (which will be at about the 8th or 9th lesson)—
- 25th. Turn to the Cadences, page 149, and sing three or four numbers each lesson until all are familiar; then—
- 26th. Turn to Choir and Chorus drill, page 150, and practice four or five formulas each lesson.

Thus the first 16 or 20 minutes of each lesson will be spent in the most profitable manner possible, after which proceed with the study of the following pages in the order therein set forth.

At No. 227, page 116, it becomes necessary to explain COMPLEMENTARY SIGNATURES, which may be done as follows:—Complementary signatures are those which indicate two different keys that are represented by the same degrees of the staff (as E, 4 sharps, and E flat, 3 flats). Sharp signatures always have their complements in flat signatures, and vice versa, the united number of signs being seven, thus:

Sharps.....	1	2	3	4	5	6
Flats.....	6	5	4	3	2	1
	7	7	7	7	7	7

To find the complement of any given signature, subtract the number of its signs from seven, and the remainder (in the opposite kind of signs) will be the desired complement. e. g. What is the complementary signature of two sharps? Ans. Two from seven leaves five, hence five flats and two sharps are complementary signatures.

Practical teachers will at once see the usefulness of this with classes—for having once learned to read, for instance in F (one flat), they can read equally well in F sharp (six sharps). The fact, however, should not be lost sight of, that the two keys involved by complementary signatures are not alike in anything except the representation, and that the doctrine of complementary signatures is only useful while learning to read.

No. 313. CHOIR AND CHORUS DRILL.

[The following exercises are intended for choir or chorus drill; a few of them should be practised at the commencement of each rehearsal, until all the intervals, progressions and modulations are thoroughly understood. The intervals in each exercise should be carefully analyzed by the class before attempting to sing them. These exercises will be found to involve most of the difficulties in modulation which singers are likely to meet with in the practice of choruses, either ancient or modern. Use ah or la.]

The musical score consists of 31 numbered exercises, each presented on a three-staff system (treble, alto, and bass clef). The exercises are arranged in four systems of three staves each. Each exercise is a short musical phrase, typically 4 or 8 measures long, designed for choral drill. The notation includes various intervals, progressions, and modulations, with some exercises featuring accidentals (sharps, flats, naturals) and rests. The exercises are numbered 1 through 31, with the last system containing exercises 25 through 31.

THE ROSE OF SHARON.*

Inscribed to Mrs. PALMER. Written March 8th, 1878.

Words and Music by H. R. PALMER.

1. There's a Rose that is blooming for you, friend, There's a Rose that is blooming for me;
 2. Long a - go in the val ley so fair, friend, Far a - way by the beau ti - ful sea,
 3. All in vain did they crush this fair flow'r, friend, All in vain did they shatter the tree,

Its per-fume is per-vad-ing the world, friend, Its per-fume is for you and for me.
 This pure Rose in its beauty first bloom'd, friend, And it blooms still for you and for me.
 For its roots, deep-ly bed-ded, sprang forth, friend, And it blooms still for you and for me.

REFRAIN.

beau - ty all the world shall see; ..... There's a Rose,..... a
 Rose that blooms for you,

love - ly Rose,..... Its per - fume is for you and for me.
 Rose that blooms for you,

* Of the many names given to our Saviour, the Rose of Sharon is the most beautiful. This little hymn was written on the shores of the Mediterranean, amid the fragrance of ever-blooming roses, and beneath the matchless beauty of Italian skies. Thoughts of the Holy Land on the farther shore, and of the purity and loveliness of the life of our Saviour mingled unconsciously with the surrounding beauty, and took form in this little poem and melody.
